*Best of Luck
to a sweet little girl.
always Shirley*

With trembling fingers did we weave
The holly round the Christmas hearth;
A rainy cloud possessed the
earth,
And sadly fell our New Year's Eve.
At our old pastimes in the hall
We gamboled, making vain
pretense
Of gladness, with an awful sense
Of one mute Shadow watching
all.

Then echo - like our voices
rang;
We sung, though every eye
was dim,
A merry song we sang with
him
Last year; impetuously we sang.
We ceased; a gentler feeling
crept
Upon us: surely rest is meet.
"They rest," we said, "their sleep is sweet."
And silence followed, and we wept.

With trembling fingers did we
weave
The holly round the Christmas hearth;
A rainy cloud possessed the
earth,
And sadly fell our New Year's Eve.
At our old pastimes in the hall
We gamboled, making vain
pretense
Of gladness, with an awful
sense
Of one mute Shadow watching
all.

Then echo - like our voices
rang;
We sung, though every eye
was dim,
A merry song we sang with
him
Last year; impetuously we sang.
We ceased; a gentler feeling
crept
Upon us; surely rest is meet.
"They rest," we said, "their
sleep is sweet."
And silence followed, and we
wept.

Did you ever see 105 tanned hopefuls step daintly off the buses, eagerly waiting to absorb all the knowledge soon to be inflicted upon them?

That is what the teachers of Ellsworth Memorial High School did not see in the Freshman Class of 1946. We inadvertently carried over from our grammar school days the title of Most Difficult Class.

We soon became acquainted with the customs of the school, not by having our talented singers sing but through our English classes and that so easily forgotten booklet The Bobcat.

Since it was fall, our thoughts were turned to sports, soccer being predominant. During the soccer season our freshman year the bench was warmed by John Pierce, Paul Juttner, and Kenneth O'Dell. As the years passed, they gradually moved from the far end of the bench to the nearer end, making room for such notable players as Russell Bahler, Harry Mohn, Daniel Daley, Richard Blaney, George Caye, Roger Breton, Chester Dworak, Calvin Bancroft, and Walter Abbe.

Basketball took over the limelight where soccer had once prevailed. Little did we know as we cheered the basketball teams on to successful seasons that soon Rita Hack, Patricia Clark, and Elaine Nelson would be leading us to cheer such capable players as Danny Daley, Johnny Pierce, Dick Blaney, Ken O'Dell, Roger Breton, and Gerard Goguen. Working just as hard as the players themselves were the managers, Floyd Cotton, Chester Dworak, and George Caye.

During the girls' gym classes we had been watching, a bit skeptically we admit, Bob Hansen, Ken O'Dell, and Harry Mohn, who kept running around the gym. As soon as spring came, however, they, together with Bill Saypalia, John Vesce, David Myers, Dick Blaney, and John Pierce, showed us that diligence does pay, for they were the backbone of our track team. They climaxed their four years by winning for three years the C.I.A.C. Track Tournament at Yale.

During our four years at Ellsworth two new sports attractions were added. They were accepted, on the whole, rather well, especially baseball, which enhanced such players as Roger Breton, John Pierce, Gerard Goguen, and Daniel Daley. The cross country team is still in the experimental stage. During our last year new soccer and basketball uniforms and an electric scoreboard were added with the hearty approval of everyone in school.

In the gym on Mondays, even if you didn't see, you could hear the girls' basketball team practicing. If you looked, you would have seen Irene Morris, June Sieber, Marian Sabonis, Ann Barnes, Olive Crawford, and Lorraine Dubord vainly trying to guard such elusive forwards as Ardell Titus, Eunice Schlichting, Rita Hack, Pat Clark, Janet Kocarnik, Ann Ident, Dolores Aldington, and Lillian Tersavich, while manager Barbara Burr was trying to to take attendance.

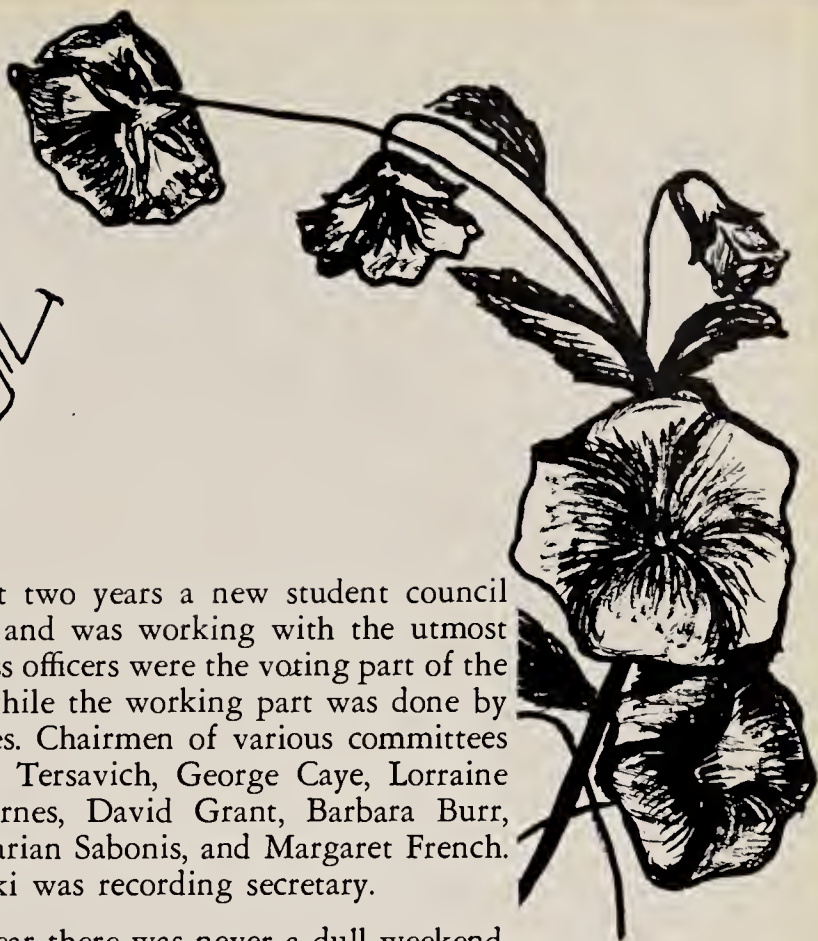

During our sophomore year we realized that there was more to Ellsworth than just sports. The clubs attracting the most students from our class the first two years were the Glee Clubs and Dramatic Club. However, in our junior and senior years we realized that other clubs needed our support. To the aid of the South Winds rushed Janet Kocarnik, head typist, and Marian Sabonis, Parade of Youth Correspondent, together with many others. In the S.C.H.E. Club, Marian Sabonis was also elected vice-president. The Hi-Y, a club exclusively for the upper class boys, chose George Caye as secretary.

In our junior year two new clubs were added by popular demand. In the newly formed French Club, Elaine Nelson was president; Barbara Burr, program chairman; and Irwin Weinberg, collector of fines. The other organized club was the Surplus Energy Squad. Need we say many of our prominent juniors were the first members of this very beneficial outfit. In our last year at Ellsworth, Marian Sabonis was president of the S.C.H.E. Club and June Sieber, treasurer; while David Grant was president of the Hi-Y.

Our third year at Ellsworth climaxed our social life. In previous years we had given the Sophomore-Freshman Party and the Freshman-Sophomore Party. Nevertheless, in our junior year we felt that life was becoming too calm—as a result, The January Thaw. Here in the gym on January 21 with balloons hanging from the rafters, we danced to the music of Charlie Wall. Our junior actors and actresses entertained us with the play Let's Make Up.

May 13 is the next big date on our social calendar. With two strikes against us (Friday the 13 and the bleachers in the gym) June Sieber, general chairman, got her committee chairmen: Joan Dower, Irene Morris, Eunice Schlichting, Eddy Barry, and Irwin Weinberg, early to plan in detail this unique dance. Wally Field's orchestra serenaded us that night in an atmosphere of palm trees and thatched huts, with twinkling stars hanging from an extremely low blue sky. Over all this presided our Queen Elaine Nelson.

History

If it weren't parties, it was musical productions. In Marrying Marion, Barbara Burr lost her man, (or did she?) and Donnie Foster kept losing his belongings; Olive Crawford, Paul Roman, and Edward Barry gave outstanding performances. In the Dumb Waiter Donald Foster, Paul Roman, Olive Crawford, and Edward Barry continued to bring fame to our class. In Campus Daze again seniors dominated the cast. If you looked at one of the programs, you would have seen the names of Rita Hack, Bob Hansen, Elaine Nelson, David Grant, Eddy Barry, Paul Roman, and Olive Crawford.

Two things made the Graduation of the Class of 1949 run smoothly. As marshals the class had June Sieber, Barbara Burr, and Janet Kocarnik, while Patricia Clark, Joyce Collins, Eunice Schlichting, Ann Barnes, Josephine Luchina, Iva Howard, Irene Morris, Lillian Tersavich, and Eva Peterson ushered. Two of our intelligentsia represented our class in the National Honor Society—Marian Sabonis and June Sieber.

Our senior year had finally arrived. Our motto, "Have fun, for this is our last year," was carried out in full. However, at times it was abandoned. One of these times was the election of officers. As we looked over our class, we realized that in our freshman year Harry Mohn had been president; Kenneth O'Dell, vice-president; June Sieber, secretary, and Irene Morris, treasurer. In our sophomore year the ballot had changed little. Kenneth O'Dell was president; Harry Mohn was vice-president; Elaine Nelson, secretary, and Irene Morris, treasurer. During our junior year Wapping, Broad Brook, and South Windsor decided not let Warehouse Point sweep through the elections again. When the ballots were counted, William Saypalia was president; Roger Breton, vice-president; Patricia Clark, secretary, and Eunice Schlichting, treasurer. In our senior year, when the results were tabulated, William Saypalia was again president; Harry Mohn, vice-president; June Sieber, secretary, and treasurer, Patricia Clark.

After so many crowded activity periods in Room 24, all our elections were completed. June Sieber was editor-in-chief of the yearbook; Janet Kocarnik and Ann Barnes, assistant editors; David French, photography editor; Lorraine Dubord, Natalie Gedrim, and Janet Shirah, art editors; Donald Foster and Joan Dower, subscription managers; and David Grant and Eunice Schlichting, business managers.

Donnie Foster and Joan Dower were teamed up again to write the class will; Audrey Vining and Harry Mohn, to foretell the future, and Ann Barnes, to prepare the class history.

During our last two years a new student council had been formed and was working with the utmost efficiency. The class officers were the voting part of the student council, while the working part was done by various committees. Chairmen of various committees have been Lillian Tersavich, George Caye, Lorraine Dubord, Ann Barnes, David Grant, Barbara Burr, Elaine Nelson, Marian Sabonis, and Margaret French. Beverly Mendoluski was recording secretary.

In our senior year there was never a dull weekend. Our hilarious Senior - Get - Together had the usual games and dancing. But as added attractions there were the Senior Strollers who took an old fashioned walk (Did they ever return?) and a play Yes Means No, starring Donnie Foster, Barbara Burr, Paul Roman, Irwin Weinberg, and Olive Crawford. Do you remember who the Senior Mystery Man was? How could you forget Danny Daley, imitating that immortal Al Jolsen?

Within the next few weeks Room 24 repaid in full the sixteen dollars by which it lost the magazine campaign to Room 26. In all a total of $3,366.65 was sold with a net profit of $1,171.65 for our class. This amount was the most sold by any school in Connecticut. Try to beat that, Juniors.

Superstition being the least of our worries, our party-minded senior class decided to have the Jack Frost Jamboree on January 13, again a Friday. General chairman Eunice Schlichting, together with June Clark, Irwin Weinberg, Gerard Goguen, and Joan Dower, planned a night of modern and square dancing with Roger Pease's Orchestra. It was hard trying to keep down the applause for the play Macbeth, which the seniors presented, for if Shakespeare had ever heard the thunderous applause given to this tragedy, he might have rolled over in his grave.

Another time when our senior class had to abandon its motto was during our Christmas Vacation when the news of Richard Blaney's death reached us. Dick had been active in all phases of school life and was liked and admired by all. His death was a tragedy we'll never forget.

Our four years at Ellsworth have ended, but they have supplied us with many happy memories. For four years we have tried to make Ellsworth a better school. Now, we, the Class of 1950, will go on to try to make a better world.

We, the Class of 1950, being of unquestionably sound mind and memory, despite the narrow escapes and harrowing experiences of these four years, do hereby ordain and establish this to be our final will and testament and do sincerely hope that the underclassmen will benefit greatly by the priceless inheritances herein bestowed:

Walter Abbe relinquishes his Mighty Joe Young build to Robert Juttner. How many telephone books can you rip at a time, Bobby?

Dolores Aldington and Anita Palmer will their everlasting grins to Janet Nicewicz.

Grace Gee bequeaths her ability on the roller-skating rink to Anna Howard. Keep steady on the feet, Anna.

George Caye and Russell Bahler give up the privilege of taking turns getting the family car from their fathers to Earl Larson and Bobby Gagnon. How is your persuasive ability, boys?

Lillian Baltulonis donates her love for the polka to Nancy Groskritz. Try not to step on any feet, Nancy.

Calvin Bancroft bequeaths his endless car trouble to Rosemary Reister. Take it easy on the brakes, Rosemary.

To any worshipper of that dreamy look, Ann Barnes leaves her expressive eyes.

Roger Breton wills his Ipana smile to Dick Brennan. Want to pose for some ads, Dick?

To any underclassman plagued by a lack of intelligence, Barbara Burr leaves her extensive knowledge.

June Clark gives up her ability for putting typing and adding machines out of order to Marilyn Bolles. Try to set a minimum, Marilyn.

June Rose and Alma Carlson are left Janet Kocarnik and Pat Clark's back-breaking job of being librarians G period. Remember patience is fortitude, girls.

Joyce Collins and Betty Roman bestow their clownish and pert ways upon Irene Sullivan and Donna Lee Chapman.

Herbert Grandahl is to be the recipient of Floyd Cotton's seat in trig. Keep calm at all times, Herbie.

Lorraine Foster will receive Olive Crawford's talent on the stage at Ellsworth. Do you think you can double Olive's appearances?

Albert Cushman leaves to Charles Johnson his famous seat in the orchestra used while playing the sax. Can you hit high C, Charlie? Albie can.

Daniel Daley leaves Ellsworth looking for another Al Jolsen. How 'bout that, Dapper?

Thelma Davis bequeaths her talent for jitterbugging to Carolyn Knight. Can you cut a rug as well as Thelma, Carolyn?

Betty Enes gives up her many valuable pictures of Willie Pep and Ted Williams to Margaret Parent. How much are you going to insure them for, Margaret?

David French leaves his keen eye for photography to Bayard Pelton. Be sure to use film, Billy.

Margaret French donates her black Pontiac to Joan Rittlinger. Don't forget all you learned in safety, Joan.

Natalie Gedrim wills her vogueish style to Diane Stiles. Be sure to keep your subscription to Seventeen, Diane.

Evelyn Goff gives up her pleasant disposition to Elaine Pola.

Gerard Goguen donates his famous pipe to anyone who likes Prince Albert's smoking tobacco. How about Sherlock, Gerard?

David Grant leaves his good naturedness to Billy Loftus. Let's keep up the smiling, Billy.

Dorothy Gregonis and Lillian Tersavich give up their long, amiable friendship to Dorothy Winn and Audrey Rivers.

Majorie Groskritz surrenders her frequent visits to the Scantic Parish House to Bud Vining. Always be ready for lots of fun, Bud.

Rita Hack gives up her famous Irish brogue to Zula Carey. Top o' the morning, Zu.

Carl Petersen is the recipient of Robert Hansen's Frank Crosby voice. Can you make the girls sigh, Carl?

Joyce Hevenor bequeathes her fast run to the school bus in the morning to Bobby Aldington. How many miles an hour can you run, Bobby?

Iva Howard relinquishes her favorite spot at the ping pong table to Gloria Grotta. Think you can beat Iva, Gloria?

Ann Ident gives up her D period seat in the library to Janet Lynskey. Be sure to see how Tarzan's doing, Janet.

Elsie Johndrow bestows her pep and vitality upon Sally Stiles. Let's get to classes on time, Sally, now that you have all that pep.

Margaret Johnson leaves her quiet typing ways to Lois Huter. Remember, Lois, no playing with your machines.

Chester Dworak surrenders his privilege of standing by Room 25 lunch periods to Robert Hayes.

Kenny O'Dell wills his well worn tracks from Main Street to Bridge Street to Billy Luscinskas.

Rose Joseph leaves her loud and boisterous manner to Arline Johnson. Remember quietness is a virtue, Arline.

Paul Juttner bequeaths his Esquire fashions and snappy appearances to Louis Roe. Don't forget, Louie, a tie a day will keep the blues away.

Leonard Kessler wills his famous trumpet to Ronald Driscoll. Harry James will provide quite a bit of competition, Ronny.

Gladys Lackouskas donates her reserved manner to Ellen McCaffery. Don't be too quiet, Ellen.

Josephine Luchina bequeaths her ability to whip up an ice cream soda to June Muir. Can you do it in a minute flat, June?

Beverly Mendoluski leaves her many "E's" in shorthand to Margie Bahler. Good luck, Margie.

To any proud owner of a car, Charles Momm wills his cherished parking place.

Rene Morris bestows her zest and zeal for life upon Elaine Kupchunos. You can't always see Rene, but she is always there.

David Myers leaves his wavy hair-do to Buddy Collins. Is it natural or do you have a Toni, Buddy?

Elaine Nelson leaves her talent for singing and playing the guitar at the same time to Dolly Sinsigalli. We hope you continue to provide entertainment at the parties, Dolly.

Donald Packer relinquishes his profitable automobile business to Sue Hudson. Which would you like a Packard or Hudson, Sue?

William Page wills his love for skiing to Curt O'Dell. Maybe you had better wait for some snow, Curt.

Rosemary Sullivan bequeaths her smiling Irish eyes to Mary Jean Ahern.

Beverly Deveran is to receive Laura Palozie's extremely serious ways. Have lots of laughs, Beverly.

To any dancing aspirant, who wears a size 12 shoe, triple D, and has trouble standing, Eunice Schlichting leaves her dancing ability.

Betty Shaia leaves her trouble of being bumped into in the hall to Joan Williams.

June Sieber and Audrey Vining will their optimistic outlook on life to Mary Dziubinskas and Harriet Shea.

Marilyn Staiger leaves her neat appearance in gym clothes to Jean Badstubner. Don't forget, Jean, take your clothes home once a week.

John Vesce bequeaths his long hair to Alfred Bowidas. Better watch out, girls; Samson had long hair and he was strong.

To Gerald Blaney, Frank Wadsworth leaves his tourist guide pamphlet describing the scenic beauty of Warehouse Point.

Irwin Weinberg relinquishes his famous collection of chapeaux to Donald Baltulonis. You'll need quite a few hat boxes, Don.

Shirley Winton leaves her quiet and friendly ways to Loretta Wilder.

Jean Ident and Billy Martinez are the recipients of Ardell Titus and John Pierce's keen eyes on the basketball court.

Paul Roman bestows his talent in acting upon Howard Smith. To be or not to be, that is the question—eh, Howie?

Charles Royce bequeaths his column in the South Winds, "Royce Predicts," to Bill Bradt. Only one column, Billy.

To any future typing aspirant, who has trouble striking the home keys, Marion Sabonis wills her typing ability.

William Saypalia leaves his famous last words: "And did I tell you the one about the man who got runned over by the steam roller?" to Myron Burr. Think you can keep them laughing as Billy did, Myron?

Joseph Sazinski will give his cherished motor scooter to Ronnie Roberts. Be sure you have enough gas before you start, Ronnie.

Jean LaPierre leaves her love for flying to Rachel Collins. Be sure to bring a parachute, Rachel.

Edward Barry leaves his long hike to school each day to his brother David. Leave at eight and be here at eight, Rusty.

Eva Peterson leaves her calm, easygoing manner to Arlene Luchina. We have lots of time yet, Arlene.

Betsy Risley and Janet Shirah give up their corner in the basement for selling cafeteria tickets to Patricia Allen and Barbara McCray. We hope the money checks, girls.

Paul Robidoux and Kenneth Sunega will their red faces acquired while in front of the class to anyone who can match them.

Bill Beckerman joyfully leaves.

Joan Dower and Harry Mohn leave their smiles in the clouds to anyone who can reach them. Do you think Betty Hevenor and Teddy Wuskell can do it?

Lorraine Dubord and Donnie Foster leave their shy and quiet manners to Jean Rose and Tommy Loftus.

We hereby appoint Mr. Flood executor of this last will and testament; in Witness Whereof we have hereunto set our hand and affixed our seal at East Windsor Hill, Connecticut, this ninth day of June in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty.

Prophecy

SCENE: Audrey Vining, a registered nurse, sitting at a desk of a doctor's inner office as the phone rings.

TIME: June 1964.

Audrey: Dr. Bahler's office. Oh, yes, Dr. Bahler. Certainly, Dr. Bahler. I'll cancel your consultation with Dr. Caye. Yes, Dr. Bahler, I understand. By the way, Miss Sabonis, the Visiting Nurse, called and asked if you would drop in at the Smiths. The whole family is in bed with the flu. It's the second house on the right hand side of Depot Street, the one next to Bancroft's Black Bugle Nightclub. Goodbye.

Harry: (Rushing into the office) Quick! Where's the doc?

Audrey: What's happened?

Harry: There's a man out here. I think he's sick. His face is red; his eyes are yellow, and he looks green.

Audrey: I'll look at him. The doctor won't be in for an hour or so. (telephone rings) Well, here, take his temperature. I'll have to answer the phone. No, he isn't in, Miss Groskritz. No, I'm afraid he won't be able to this afternoon, but I'm sure he'll attend to it tomorrow morning. That was the Wapping School. I'll make a note of it. He'll be sure to see Tommy tomorrow.

Harry: (Running in) He's gone.

Audrey: Sh - -, no, not you, Miss Groskritz. Surely, goodbye. Now what were you saying?

Harry: He's gone. He couldn't have been sick. Oh, well. (telephone rings)

Audrey: Dr. Bahler's office. You say he has a broken arm. Oh, you think he has a broken arm. Well, I'm sure Dr. Bahler would send you to Mr. Myers, who is an X-ray technician, for X-rays. That's quite all right. Goodbye.

Harry: Say, this couldn't be Russell Bahler's office, could it?

Audrey: Yes, it is.

Harry: I went to school with him.

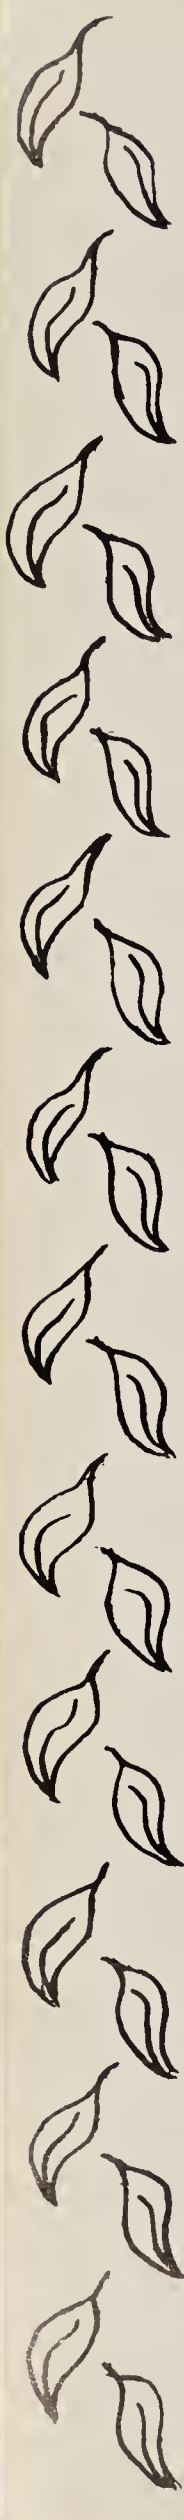

Audrey: I knew you looked familiar. You're Harry Mohn.

Harry: Surely, I remember you. Class of 1950. Audrey Vining, isn't it? Funny I should run into you today. Just this morning I saw June Sieber, escorted by two motorcycle cops, Frank Wadsworth and Chester Dworak. I gathered she was on her way to the Sunega Savings Bank to deposit a couple thousand.

Audrey: She has an exceptional job working for the Howard, Dower, Mendoluski, and Gee Department Store. That's the store where Olive Crawford is store detective.

Harry: Our classmates certainly have made names for themselves. Why everyone has heard of the Saypalia Symphony featuring Lenny Kessler and Albert Cushman.

Audrey: Yes, they certainly have. Do you read "Royce Predicts" in the Windsor Locks Journal? He says that Tales of South Windsor, the latest Nelson, Abbe production, will be their greatest show. You know, of course, that they were both in our class. Bill Beckerman, the disc jockey for the Sullivan Lipstick Company, said that her music reached the Hit Parade the fastest of any song he remembers. The way Walter converted his book, which was published by the Clark and Clark Publishing Company, to a stage show is astonishing.

Harry: I was surprised to learn that both Rita Hack and Bob Hansen were co-starring in it. Just think! We know stars from Broadway.

Audrey: Royce said that a good deal of credit should be given to Paul Roman, who directed the show.

Harry: The tickets were as scarce as hen's teeth, but I was lucky enough to get a couple. I knew the girl selling them. You remember Anita Palmer.

Audrey: Certainly, her girl friend, Joyce Collins, is the telephone operator here. It really is a small world. Do you realize that John Vesce designed this building?

Harry: That's remarkable; he also designed the building for Natalie Gedrim and Irene Morris' exclusive dress shop. Janet Shirah works for them. She designs all the clothes for Eunice Schlichting's modeling jobs. Speaking of our classmates, Irwin Weinberg is just about in the middle of his program. Do you mind if I tune it in?

Irwin: — and furthermore, I predict that Yankee Manager Ken O'Dell will pitch Spinner Spunucio in the hair-raising game with the Breton Bluebirds, a newly organized up and going team. Yes, I said up and going right out of the league if they don't win a game soon. Now some news on the Olympic teams. Another member of the skiing team has been chosen. His name is Bill Page. Bill deserves a lot of credit; good luck, Bill. Flash! Lorraine Dubord has just started to swim back. Ladies and gentlemen, after swimming the English Channel, Lorraine, despite protests from her coach, Josephine Luchina, has turned around and started back. Whether she makes it or not, this will be the first time such a feat has ever been attempted. Here is another bulletin: Ann Barnes has been chosen the director of the Y.M.C.A.'s in New England. She is now headed for Connecticut with Ardell Titus, her assistant. Lillian Baltulonis is signaling me from the control booth, so now a word from our announcer, Donald Foster, about our product which is Grant's Potatoes, those luscious, delicious, appetizing potatoes grown to their peak of perfection in Melrose.

Announcer: It's - - -

Irwin: That's all we'll have time for; 'till tomorrow, remember Grant's Potatoes are good and good for you.

Audrey: While you're waiting, would you like to read this magazine, Connecticut? It's the newest thing yet. The staff is largely made up of students from our class. David French is the head photographer; Betty Enes is the literary editor; Ann Ident is the managing editor; and Joyce Hevenor is the society editor.

Harry: (turning off the radio, and taking the magazine) Why, this looks like Dapper Daley on the cover.

Audrey: It is; this issue features Dap and his new plane, the Z7-11. It's supposed to be able to travel 1100 miles an hour.

Harry: (turning pages) Here's the story. Let's see. (reading a little) It was financed by Paul Juttner, and it's now stationed at LaPierre's Airport in Hartford. Say, that's where Rose Joseph works as an air line hostess.

Audrey: I thought of that when I read the story, too. Did you see the picture of Don Packer and Joe Sazinski? Dapper won't let anyone else touch his plane. (Harry continues reading)

Harry: Listen to this. "For the next flight Daniel Daley has instructed his mechanics to install wings on the plane."

Audrey: On page 30 they have an article on Elsie Johndrow. You know she's started a university for the blind. I.C.U.

Harry: I heard about that. You said page 30. Here it is. The picture shows Gladys Lackouskas teaching typing to some students. (telephone rings)

Audrey: Doctor Bahler's Office. Oh, yes, Laura. How are you? Fine. All right. Call me up again when you have more time. Bye. That was Laura Palozie. She's Floyd Cotton's secretary. He sells medical supplies. They're sending over our order with Charlie Momm.

Harry: His trucking agency is known all over the state. I wonder whether Charlie Momm will drive it over himself. I'd surely like to see him.

Audrey: I almost forgot. I've got to cancel Dr. Bahler's consultation with Dr. Caye. Joyce, get me Dr. Caye's office. Hello, Eva. This is Audrey. Tell Dr. Caye that Dr. Bahler is to meet him today. Surely I'll tell him. Bye now.

Harry: Was that Eva Peterson?

Audrey: Yes, she went to junior college and took a course to become a professional receptionist. When Betty Shaia, who works for their placement bureau, realized that they were classmates, she sent Eva to apply for the position.

Harry: Did you see this? It's an ad for the French's Travel Bureau: "Betty Roman, one of our foremost lecturers will be glad to speak on 'How to enjoy your vacation in the dense jungles of Africa' any time for a nominal fee."

Audrey: Before I forget, I have to make out an accident report for the man you brought in here. I want his name and address and the cause of the accident.

Harry: I don't know his name or address, but I have the license of the car that hit him. It happened right in front of the Ye Olde Pierce Inn.

Audrey: You mean the place in East Windsor where the Andross, Aldington Comedy team just appeared?

Harry: Yes, that's the place. They serve the best apple pie in the state.

Audrey: Come to think of it, three of our classmates are waitresses. You must remember Margaret Johnson, Thelma Davis, and Dorothy Gregonis.

Harry: They make so much money they have two bookkeepers also from our class, Shirley Winton and Betsy Risley.

Audrey: This case will have to go to court. Judge Robidoux will preside. You'll be a witness, so, no doubt, Gerard Goguen will want to talk to you.

Harry: Is he the prosecutor? I thought that Eddy Barry was.

Audrey: Yes, he was, but he turned the offer down this year because his law practice was too big. Lillian Tersavich is a Superior Court stenographer—(telephone) Dr. Bahler's office—(pause) oh, yes, Barbara. (pause) You have. That's fine. How do you like working there? (pause) Yes, Janet Kocarnik does make an able assistant. All right. Bye.

Harry: It couldn't be Barbara Burr, could it?

Audrey: Yes, as a matter of fact, it was.

Harry: I think we've talked about everyone in our class today.

Audrey: No, not all of them. I forgot to tell you about Evelyn Goff. She's opened a kindergarten in South Windsor. By the way, what do you do?

Harry: I'm a private eye. You know eighteen dollars a day plus expenses. Marilyn Staiger's my secretary.

Audrey: Oh, that must be Dr. Bahler. I'm sure he'll be surprised to see you.

Harry: It will be worth waiting all these years to shake the hand of our distinguished doctor.

Audrey: He'll be in his private office. Right this way.

P o e m

Through the changing years we will stop to reminisce
To gaze fondly at remembrances of hours with friends,
Those smiles and laughing hearts that we cannot dismiss,
Those who gave us precious days, not to be shared again.

Need we sorrowfully miss that which has gone by?
No, for those memories are ours to bring a smile again;
Or mourn because those hours in dust of years past lie?
No, we will be grateful for this time spent with friends.

We've been given knowledge by those who wished to help,
Though often we have passed their guidance by;
But we hope in future years to utilize our given wealth,
To do our best, to keep our ideals high.

This night of our departure we will cherish through the years,
As we leave our school with many an inward sigh.
The times we've been within your halls we always will hold dear,
And for these priceless hours we say, "Thank you, Ellsworth High."

— ELAINE NELSON.

S o n g

In Ellsworth's halls four years we've gained
In wisdom and in stature,
And now we sing our parting song
And bravely face the future.

To those who've helped us on our way
Our grateful thanks we give.
And trust that we may every day
By their fine precepts live.

CHORUS

Eternal as the gentle stream
Through our green valley flows,
So may our thoughts return to dream
Of days which now must close.

Hail and farewell to thee, dear Ellsworth High.
For thee we've cheered the loudest.
Of thee we've been the proudest.
Hail and farewell to thee.

— BARBARA BURR.

ADVANCED ENSEMBLE

The Advanced Ensemble is composed of a group of Ellsworth's outstanding instrumental players. The caliber of music undertaken enables the participants to demonstrate their ability, their tone production, and their musical interpretation.

Band I is offered to give Ellsworth students a chance to learn the fundamentals of playing instruments in a group. One of its most important activities was participating in the Memorial Day Parade in East Windsor.

CLASS

For the first time chorus has been offered as a unit subject. The fundamentals of vocal techniques and music appreciation were taught. Lectures were given by the students and Miss Dziob. The participants were also given an opportunity to learn to conduct singing groups.

One of the most important activities was the production of the musical comedy, Campus Daze. The chief characters were Carrie, Elaine Kupchunos; Spencer, Robert Hansen; Bobby, Elaine Nelson; Tommy, David Grant; Porkey, Charles Johnson; Fred, Donald Foster; Ma Jenkins, Rita Hack; Madam Louise, Ellen McCaffrey; Hiram Goodnow, George Collins; Governor Thompson, Paul Roman; Izzy, Edward Barry.

The Hi-Y met three times monthly: two activity period meetings and one evening meeting which consisted of a speaker, discussion, and a supper cooked by the club members. For the second year the boys took a deep-sea fishing trip.

The Hi-Y basketball team, defending champions in the senior division, participated in the Hartford County Basketball League and again made a fine showing.

TECHNICAL SERVICE SQUAD

The members of the Technical Service Squad find no end to the work they can do in helping teachers in the use of all audio-visual aids in the school, including the new tape recorder.

The squad, which was formed four years ago, for the first time has found girls who are interested in its work.

JOURNALISM CLUB

The Journalism Club met each Thursday after school. At this time Miss Zehnder gave journalism instruction to club members, who this year, for the first time, used the work-book Exercises in Journalism.

A bulletin board, magazine rack, and filing cabinet have also been added to Room 38 to aid the club's work.

During a Newspaper Assembly held in October, a staff member of the Hartford Times showed films and spoke on Journalism as a Career.
